

Your dream home theater might just come true, as it did for the owners of this spectacular room, thanks to Tech Homes Inc. of Powder Springs, GA. But you should also do some homework, which can actually be fun.

Sampling the GOODS

Assessing a home theater system and choosing one that's right for you.

The big demo is the fun part about shopping for a home theater. Many custom electronics companies have beautiful showrooms with working home theaters designed to wow you. You'll see brilliant colors on the big-screen, and you'll hear the raw, awesome power of a surround-sound system. ■ Go ahead, have some fun. But remember: You're not just sitting back in a theater enjoying a show; you're more like the director auditioning actors for your latest production. This is your chance to assess not only the performance of some killer home theater systems but also the performance of the installation company. It's your job to determine which home theater system and company is right for you.
